

Videos

Last Updated Friday, 29 August 2008

On this page, we have assembled several videos concerning our efforts here in Seminole County as well as highlighting many of the issues regarding Conservation worldwide. Please enjoy! (and if you know of any videos that we should include, don't hesitate to Contact us)

Note: You must have Adobe's Flash Player installed to see some of these. It is a free plug-in available at Adobe .

Seminole Soil and Water Conservation District Informational Video Part I

Seminole Soil and Water Conservation District Informational Video Part II

Sustainable Agriculture: Curing America's Eating Disorder

Filmmaker Bonnie Bucqueroux looks at the sustainable agriculture movement, including a visit to Michigan State University's Student Organic Farm, where Dr. John Biernbaum discusses the options people have to grow their own food or to buy from local growers.

Strategies for Sustainable Agriculture: Vegetables

Rooy Media LLC has created over fifty programs that educate people about important social issues. This video clip is a sample from Strategies for Sustainable Agriculture: Vegetables, one program in a six-part series that profiles the impressive strides many farmers have made in lowering the use of chemicals and creating healthier food, a safer environment, and greater profits. Produced in association with Rodale Institute. For more information, visit www.rooymedia.com

More videos coming soon...